Property Rights and Agricultural Land Market in Ethiopia

Olawoumi Alexis Atchade
University of Houston
Working Paper — 2026

Abstract

Using a household-plot panel from Ethiopia, I study how a land certification program affects participation in rental markets, contract choice, and land reallocation across farmers. I find certification significantly increases rental market participation, especially land supplied by low-productivity farmers, and facilitates reallocation to higher-productivity farmers.

This page is a work in progress. Check back later for updates.